Program Notes by Wolfgang Bottenberg

The Sonata for Piano is a contribution to the very rich repertoire of this genre. It follows the traditional forms of the classical sonata: Sonata-allegro, ternary song form, rondo. Only the use of extended tonality and modality (the last movement is in the lydian mode) hint at its contemporary origin.

The Variations on "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes" were commissioned by Peter Taylor of Vancouver as a birthday present for his wife Gillian, an amateur violist. I wanted this composition to be an accessible work which would be enjoyed by performers and listeners alike. As the variations develop, the theme gradually retreats when new ideas emerge, to re-appear in its initial freshness after a lively fugue.

Seasons of Life follows the poetic imagination of Shakespeare as he comments on youth and age. Four of the five songs are well known, lighthearted poems from various plays, while That Time of Year is a serious meditation on old age in the form of a sonnet. Its exquisite text reads as follows:

That time of year thou may'st in me behold
When yellow leaves, or none, or few, do hang
Upon those boughs which shake against the cold,
Bare ruin'd choirs, where late the sweet birds sang

In me thou see'st the twilight of such day
As after sunset fadeth in the west,
Which by and by black night doth take away,
Death's second self, that seals up all the rest.

In me thou see'st the glowing of such fire,
That on the ashes of his youth doth lie
As the death-bed whereon it must expire,
Consumed with that which it was nourish'd by:

This thou perceiv'st, which makes thy love more strong
To love that well which thou must leave ere long.

The Swiss painter Paul Klee (1879-1940) had a special affinity for music, which becomes apparent in form, themes, and temporal sequencing of his art. Drawings of Paul Klee is a musical interpretation of three of his graphic works.

Sailboats in gentle motion shows, beyond the obvious swaying of the sails, a subtle relationship of the numbers two and three. Sails and boats are in groups of two, while the triangularity of the sails hints at the number three. This is taken up by the music with its constant motion of triplets against duplets.

The Dance of the Sad Child shows a figure of uncertain childhood seemingly suffering from Weltschmerz. The music for this is a melancholy waltz in late romantic style.

ORGELBERG · 1954

The Organ Mountain is a strange place where incongruous architecture (unmanageable stairs, temples and churches) are placed in stone formations which resemble organ pipes and fantastic brass instruments. The composition for this is an organ toccata which takes its clues both from Bach and from Ravel.

The title of my cello sonata, Illuminations, refers to two different meanings of the word, which can stand either for 'enlightenment' or for decorative illustrations in sacred texts. The first movement of this composition is constructed exclusively from the pentatonic scale. The intention is an "enlightenment" to the brilliant harmonic potential of this oldest of melodic scales. The second movement is a musical manuscript illumination of the Marian antiphon Alma redemptoris mater (Benign Mother of the Redeemer), with text and melody by the monk Hermannus Contractus, who lived in the early eleventh century. The plainchant melody is quoted in its entirety, followed by two variations. The concluding toccata is meant to signify that enlightenment and wisdom are not only the fruit of meditation, but also of a well-directed active life.

The Piano Trio in D, written in the fall of last year, is a contribution to this wonderful genre of chamber music which should be accessible to serious amateurs, as are the piano trios of Haydn, Mozart and Beethoven. The joy of this music, I believe, is more for the performers than for the listeners, but most of the works written for this combination in the last two centuries are only accessible to professional performers. When I wrote this work, the sounds of Brahms' chamber music were in my ears.

The drawing opposite the program is by my son Rupert. It contains allusions to all six works on this program, and challenges you to find these.

I want to thank the performers who have made this concert possible, most of all Roger Parton who took the lion's share in its preparation. Also, I want to thank the Department of Music for generous support.
